Detailed Itinerary

Being picked up from your hotel, you will commence this amazing night tour.

Your first site is City Wall. Built in Sui Dynasty, Xian Ancient City Wall has endured a lot up and downs. It's always there to protect Xianese whenever there is a invasion. Nowadays, it has retired from its protection duty, yet still functioning as a cultural symbol of Xian. At night when all lights are on, the common-like City Wall becomes lively again.

Following the historical city wall, you will get to Big Wild Goose Pagoda. Coming here, the most important view you must not miss is the Fountain Show. Located in the north square of Big Wild Goose Pagoda, this fountain is the largest one in Asia. The glamorous and sensual show deserves people to make their way out of the big crowds. Upon the music begins, the water spout will spread instantly like a blooming flower. The shape changes with the music, making people feel with the singing. After the fountain show, the Big Wild Goose Pagoda becomes the major scene again. You will see middle-aged locals dancing, singing, playing, practicing calligraphy or shuttlecock, etc.. Some young people may prefer to access the gift shops or ghost houses or restaurants.

Adjacent to Big Wild Goose Pagoda, Tang Dynasty Sleepless City is right ahead of you. Right across the great Monk Xuan Zang, you will see the sculpture of Jian Zhen, another famous monk in Tang Dynasty. Unlike Xuan Zang journeying to India for Buddhism scriptures, Jian Zhen went to Japan 6 sixes to spread Buddhism culture and promote cultural communication between two nations. Follow Jian Zhen's sculpture, you will encounter a couple of other celebrities covering
